

Canadian cow produces most milk ever

OTTAWA: A Holstein cow named Smurf from a farm east of here has set a new world record for the most milk produced in a lifetime — a whopping 216,891kg over 15 years. And she's still producing. "That's the equivalent of more than one million glasses of milk," said Smurf's owner Eric Patenaude, a sixth-generation dairy farmer. Guinness World Records confirmed the record on Monday. It previously belonged to a cow in Michigan, United States. Smurf's mother, Murphy, was also a good milker. Smurf turns 16 in September and is expecting her 11th calf.
