MANILA: An animal rights group in the Philippines said yesterday it helped police bust a South Korean syndicate operating a massive dog fighting ring and rescue 300 pitbulls. Two South Korean nationals and several Filipinos were arrested in the Friday raid at a two-hectare farm in the city of San Pablo just south of the capital Manila, the Philippine Animal Welfare Society (PAWS) said. Many of the dogs were severely injured, with ripped ears and tongues, including 20 that needed to be euthanised, it said. "This appears to be a large operation and these South Koreans need to be punished," PAWS programme director Anna Cabrera said. — AFP
